Dr. Marc Kahn

Dr Marc Kahn is a people, organisation and strategy leader, teacher and author based in London.

He is currently an executive at Investec plc, a FTSE 250 company, where he heads the global people and organisation function and chairs the company's sustainability committee. He is also visiting professor of people, organisation and strategy practices at Middlesex University.

As a systems and chaos theory protagonist he maintains that living systems must be approached very differently from the industrial machine metaphor used in organisations today.

He has worked with many organisations across industries and geographies for 25 years and speaks at conferences and events on organisational success, leadership, culture, diversity and inclusion, innovation, coaching, learning and sustainability in twenty first century organisation.
